Antique painted pine tavern settle

Description

19th century pine curved tavern settle in its original worn crusty glaze painted finish. The high backs were originally designed to keep drafts away from when sitting next to a hot fire on cold windy days. This one although not perfect it does have plenty of character showing through and would work great at a kitchen table or in rustic pub setting.

It appears that the left hand side has at some point in its life been replaced. It also has some patches of historic worm that do not affect its use and the whole is structurally sound.
